Cotton Estimate Is Raised to 12,212,000 Bales on Saturday

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Department of Agriculture estimated Saturday that the cotton crop this year is 12,212,000 bales of 500 pounds.

Government Plans to Finance Utility and Rail Industry

Long-Term Recovery Program Sought for the Heavy Industries

RAILS DEPRESSED

Are Gloomiest Part of the National Business Picture Today

NEW YORK—(AP)—Some high circles in Wall Street Friday predicted a broad economic recovery in the United States, basing their expectations largely on the opinion that the federal government was about to intensify its recovery program as it affects heavy industry.

These sources said that recent discussions between business leaders and administration officials in Washington had developed a gigantic tentative plan to stimulate spending by the electric power companies as part of a national defense measure, and serious consideration of measures to facilitate heavy equipment purchases by the railroads.

This viewpoint was brought out in a canvass of nearly a score of financial and industrial leaders and Wall Street economists who were asked to give their candid, off-the-record views of the business outlook.

Outlay of Billions

Most of those questioned believed that a period of improved business is just beginning and would last at least until next spring. But some who professed knowledge of the heavy industry plans in Washington looked for a longer recovery cycle, pointing out that recent upward cycles had been short lived because heavy industry failed to follow gains in consumers goods lines.

They said a program of great scope partly out of recent consideration of means if linking together electric power facilities in the Eastern part of the country as a national defense measure. This program they said, involved expenditure of billions, and its eventual goal was of only preparedness but the transfer within a period of two years of a big portion of the WPA rolls to private industry.

On general lines, it said that financing had been proposed as follows:

The Reconstruction Finance Corp., to make loans approved by the War Department on an equity basis, of up to 1-2 of the capital finance requirements called for by the plan. The whole arrangement, plus the bolstering of confidence by the R. F. C. financing was expected to stimulate the present dormant market for new issues of stocks, which would enable companies involved to financing, and eventually repay the R. F. C.

Utilities Expansion

First under consideration, it was said, were the public utilities group. A leading "if" in all current business predictions has been whether the utilities generally would borrow money to build new generating plants and transmission lines before or after a general business pickup made the expansion inevitable.

The proposals were said to call for the expenditure of not less than $3,000,000,000, of new capital within the next 15 months to two years in the utility field, and further expenditures for the next 10 years of not less than $1,500,000,000 a year.

While immediate purpose of the plan calls for the interlocking of existing systems as a preparedness measure, the stimulating effect upon heavy industry generally, bankers and industrialists agreed, would be pronounced.

A somewhat similar plan, but still in a more tentative state, experts said, involves the country's leading railroads, who as a group, have made one of the most depressing segments of the national business picture. Key rail executives are at hand in Washington for conferences relating to the rail labor negotiations. From different sources came reports of efforts to arrive at a plan involving R. F. C. loans for new rail and rolling stock replacement.

Steel Industry

A leading steel executive said there had been tentative assurances that a program involving such assistance probably would be forthcoming.

The steel business is doing well, he said, in part as a result of the government housing program, and expected to do much better when the PWA construction program reached its peak. He predicted that the steel industry generally would be "out of the red" and running at a profit by the end of November.

CRANIUM CRACKER

President Roosevelt recently made public the results of a study of industrial relations in a country whose monetary unit is the krona and whose most famous citizen in America during the latter half of the last century was probably the opera singer known as "The Nightingale."

What country's industrial relations were studied? Who was the opera singer? What was the full "nightingale" title given her?

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Department of Agriculture estimated Saturday that the cotton crop this year is 12,212,000 bales of 500 pounds.

The crop forecast a month ago was 11,825,000.

The condition of the crop on October 1 was reported as 66 per cent of normal, compared with 65 per cent a month ago.

The indicated yield was reported as 221.1 pounds to the acre, compared with 214.1 pounds a month ago.

Proposed Cotton Trade

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Southern senators discussed Saturday a proposal for trading surplus American cotton and other farm commodities for needed raw materials which this country does not produce.

Commenting on a suggestion by Chairman Pittman, Nevada Democrat, of the senate foreign relations committee, that cotton be traded for silver on the world market, Senator Harrison, Mississippi Democrat, chairman of the finance committee, said he believed the plan could be broadened to include other materials.

Harrison said he thought it might be possible to trade part of the 13,400,000-bale cotton carryover for rubber, tin, coffee, and other commodities, as well as silver.

U.S. to Tighten Up Defense on Spies

Roosevelt Indicates Stronger Measures Against Espionage

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—(AP)—President Roosevelt Friday disclosed that the administration is planning to tighten its defense against the activities of foreign spies.

The president, in response to press conference questions, said he was seeking to determine what new machinery might be set up to frustrate efforts by foreign agents to obtain military and naval secrets of this country.

Parking Space Dearth an Annoying Headache

CHICAGO—(AP)—Lack of proper parking facilities costs American motorists $100,000,000 annually in lost time. That is the estimate city traffic engineer Leslie J. Sorenson of Chicago gave municipal officials meeting here.

"Traffic engineers have for years concerned themselves almost exclusively with the task of providing highways for moving vehicles," he said. "Now we must turn our attention to the problem of accommodating vehicles that are standing. The problem is fast becoming our most annoying municipal headache."

Timber Wolf Refused to Go Around Him

ARGONNE, Wis.—(AP)—Len Malliett was fired from his long hike so he lay down for a nap under a tree.

He was awakened by a sharp bark on the stomach. Two game wardens approached. They explained they had flushed a gray timber wolf from the nearby woods and the animal had trekked on Malliett in making its getaway.

Just Sunning Himself

TOPEKA, Kans.—(AP)—There is no notation in the police blotter: "Drunk reported on sidewalk at Second and Kansas Avenue." In the column headed "Disposal of Case" is this remark: "It wasn't a drunk just an Indian resting on the sidewalk. Sleeping under the sunny sky is just an old Indian custom."

An average of 95 tons of American soil is lost each second by erosion.

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. If you have a complaint to make about goods bought in a department store, should you make it to the saleswoman who waited on you?

2. Is it good manners for a shopper to smoke when she is trying on dresses?

3. Does a person of good breeding indulge in careless smoking habits—reasoning that it doesn't matter if he ruins the carpet in a store or hotel?

4. Should one make a habit of returning purchases?

5. Is it good taste to try to impress salespeople?

What would you do if—

(a) You meet friends on the street and want to take them for a minute or two—

(b) Step aside out of the way of others and have your talk?

(c) Walk along with them?

(d) Stand in the middle of the sidewalk and let people walk around you?

Bobcats Romp Over DeQueen Leopards 20-0

Led by Coleman, Bobcats Win 4th Game of Season

Bobcats Play Inspired Football to Defeat Leopards

By LEONARD ELLIS

Little Davey Coleman, 149-pound halfback, furnished the spark and inspiration that set the Bobcat football machine rolling here Friday night to a 20 to 0 triumph over the DeQueen Leopards. The victory was Hope's fourth of the season.

Coleman did everything to satisfaction, he battled down and intercepted passes, he tackled hard and deadly, he was a consistent ground gainer, but best of all he had the spirit that set off a touchdown drive in the second period and then continued to sparkle the remainder of the game.

After a scoreless first quarter, the Bobcats took possession in midfield when DeQueen failed on a fourth down. On the first play in the second period, Coleman took the ball and raced around his left end for 12 yards. It was the beginning of a touchdown drive.

Two plays later the Bobcats had advanced 11 more yards on a pass from Eason to Fulkerson. Two line plays added five more yards and then Dean Parsons, playing quarterback, raced to his left and tossed a short pass to Coleman who sprinted 25 and across the goal line. Jimmy Taylor added the extra point from placement.

Many Stars in Game

While Coleman was the shining star in the game, all of his mates played inspired football that added to a thrill-packed battle witnessed by approximately 2,500 spectators including a large delegation from DeQueen.

Bobby Ellen, shifted from end to center, played the greatest game of his life. He had never played that position before, but performed like a veteran. His defense play was especially brilliant.

Joe Eason, Dean Parsons and Charles Ray Baker, also were outstanding. Hope's second touchdown came about the middle of the second period when Joe Eason took a punt on his own 40-yard line and raced through the entire DeQueen team to score. It was the longest and most sparkling run of the game. Jimmy Taylor again added extra point from placement.

A recovered punt in the third quarter paved the way for Hope's third marker. A swarm of Bobcats broke through to block the punt. Tommy Turner recovered on DeQueen's 5-yard line. On one try Baker found a hole in the line and plunged through. Taylor missed his third try from placement.

DeQueen threatened to score only once when Bourne, quarterback, passed to Fenton who got loose for 40 yards, being brought down 10 yards from the goal line by Sonny Murphy, substitute Hope back. The Leopards tossed 29 passes and completed seven. Five were intercepted.

Hope attempted 10 and completed four. The first downs were Hope eight and DeQueen five, one of which resulted from a penalty on the Bobcats.

The First Quarter

DeQueen received and returned to the 21. After no gain, Fenton punted to Baker who misjudged the kick and DeQueen recovered on Hope's 35. After no gain, Fenton punted over the Hope goal. The ball was brought out to the 20 where Baker, on the second play, got loose for 10 yards around end. Dean Parsons smacked the line for 8. Two other line plays failed and Eason placed a punt on the Leopards five-yard line, a beautiful kick. A brief punting duel followed with Hope finally taking possession in midfield. Parsons advanced it 10 through the line. Coleman, aided by fine blocking, went around end for 21 yards, placing the ball on the 19. Baker and Parsons added nine in three plays, but on fourth down a line play failed, ending the first scoring threat. DeQueen punted to midfield. The Bobcats advanced nine yards on three plays and then a fourth down failed, DeQueen taking the ball as the quarter ended.

The Second Quarter

DeQueen made eight yards on three plays and then attempted to buck

Italian Chamber of Deputies Is Replaced by Fascist Lodge

Parliamentary System of Government Completely Extinguished by Latest Move of Mussolini's Fascists

ROME, Italy.—(AP)—The Fascist Grand Council early Friday decreed abolition of the Italian Chamber of Deputies and establishment in its place new Chamber of Fasces and Guilds. In a step long promised by Premier Mussolini, the Chamber of Deputies, already shorn of virtually all power, will cease to exist at the end of its present session.

Henceforth legislation will be enacted by the Italian Senate and a new lower house composed of representatives of Fascist party units—each unit known as a fascio—and of the guilds and corporations into which commerce, labor, industry and the professions have been united by the totalitarian regime. The Fascist party and guild representatives are to be composed of the members of their two national councils.

Mussolini and the Fascist Grand Council, which ended a midnight meeting with announcement of the new legislative set-up, also are to be members of the chamber. Minimum age limit for members is to be 25 years.

The Grand Council, Fascism's supreme policy-making body, is to meet again for consideration of international affairs. It will hear a report on Anglo-Italian talks of the last five days concerned with Italian intervention in Spain and probably British recognition of Italy's Ethiopian conquest.

The council also was expected to light of the French decision to send an ambassador to Rome after a lapse of over two years due to French's determination to withhold recognition of the Ethiopian regime.

The council laid down anti-Semitic regulations in a series of orders for "defense of the Italian race."

British Ambassador Lord Perth was continuing negotiations to hasten, if possible the end of long-standing tension in the Mediterranean. He conferred with Foreign Minister Ciano for the fifth time in five days.

Vatican circles withheld their approval of Fascism's ban on marriages between Italians and persons of "non-Aryan or alien races" until they saw how it would be enforced. Concern was expressed because the Italian government in the 1929 concordat pledge itself to recognize as legal the sacrament of marriage.

Managers decided to stand pat on their second game line-ups with the exception of the pitchers. Hartnett is calling on Clay Bryant, big right-hand fast-baller from Ohio who won 19 games for the National League pennant winners during the regular season. The Cubs also have decided to keep Joe Marty in the outfield because of his longer hitting, with Phil Cavarretta, who played the first game remaining on the bench.

While Manager Joe McCarthy stood fast on his previously announced selection of Monte Pearson, right-hand curve-baller with a record of 15 victories and seven losses in the American League campaigning, to take the mound for the Yanks in the third game some slight doubt still existed regarding him.

Pearson, credited by the New York Giants with twirling the best game and hurling more "stuff" than any other pitcher in the 1937 series, suffered from a sinus condition. He made only one mound appearance from September 17 to the end of the season last Sunday and there was no chance he might not be ready to go.

World Series Is Resumed in N. Y.

Odds Heavily Against Cubs, Playing Third Game Saturday

NEW YORK—(AP)—Two up and two to go, the jubilant New York Yankees came here Friday, confident they would be "winners and still champions" when the fourth game of their World Series with the Chicago Cubs is over Sunday night.

In sharp contrast to the Cubs, whose confidence seems to have run out—as did Dizzy Dean's fine pitching arm in the late innings of Thursday's second game—the Yanks feel Gabby Hartnett's club has showed them its best, that Saturday's third game and Sunday's fourth will wind it up.

Indications were that the manner in which the Yankees had overpowered the Cubs in the first two games, from both attack and defense standpoints, in Chicago's Wrigley Field, would bring out a capacity crowd for the opening game at Yankee Stadium. Club Secretary Ed Barrow said the Yanks expect a "full house," some 70,000-odd. All box seats have been sold.

The managers decided to stand pat on their second game line-ups with the exception of the pitchers. Hartnett is calling on Clay Bryant, big right-hand fast-baller from Ohio who won 19 games for the National League pennant winners during the regular season. Exchange of Prisoners Effected by Government and Rebels

ROME, Italy.—(AP)—The government announced Saturday that Italian troops with more than 18 months' service in Spain would be recalled to Italy.

The announcement, made in the form of a communique from Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco's headquarters at Salamanca, Spain, was distributed by the official Italian news agency, Stefani.

Private sources estimated 10,000 men would be withdrawn.

They included Norman Edward Dordland, of Memphis, Tenn.

The prisoners came from San Pedro de Cardena prison camp where 74 other American captives were reported still held.

That Dream Castle Comes Down to Earth

Why haven't we had this housing boom that everybody has been looking for during the last half dozen years?

If we could talk ourselves into it we would have had it long since. The subject has been given enough columns of type to reach from here to the moon. We have discussed pre-fabricated houses, mass production building methods, resettlement projects, slum clearance schemes, and cheaper financing until everyone concerned ought to be blue in the face. We have been told times without number how a building boom would get us out of the depression. Yet somehow the boom has not been forthcoming.

You probably could figure out a good many different reasons for this. One of them, undoubtedly, is the fact that the average citizen who needs a new house and who, conceivably, could find the money to buy one, does not realize just what he can get for his money nowadays.

There is no use denying that Mr. Average Citizen is just a wee bit gun-shy on this matter of home building. He has lived through home building booms in the past, and he has confused but lively memories of high financing costs, high building costs, and a completed product which sometimes didn't quite seem to be worth all the expense. What he needs to realize is that things are quite a bit different now.

Life Magazine performed an excellent service recently by devoting some 23 pages to the job of bringing the average citizen to this realization. The magazine remarks that financing a home is both easier and cheaper now than ever before. Secondly it points out that for all talk of high building costs, those costs today average a good 10 per cent below the costs for 1926—an "average" year, any way you look at it. And, lastly, it emphasizes a fact that hardly any of us have realized: that the business of designing and building homes has made, relatively, as great strides in the last 12 years as has the business of designing and building automobiles.

By way of demonstration, the magazine prints pictures and plans for the homes that men in different income groups can buy.

This display is abundantly worth studying. It attacks what looks like the key long of this building jam—the ordinary family man's failure to realize just what he can get for his money nowadays.

A campaign based on this point might well actually give us this building boom we have been waiting for so long.

Employment of 10,000,000 Persons Is Interrupted Annually by Accidents

(This is the first of a series of seven articles in which Dr. Fisher discusses the causes and prevention of accidents in traffic in the home, and at work.)

In the United States 106,000 people died in 1937 from accidents. The rate for Canada is 40 per cent below that of the United States.

In England and Wales there is constant agitation over deaths from accidents, yet our death rate is twice as great as that of England or Wales.

One person dies every fourteen minutes in the United States as a result of an accident in the home. Last year almost 40,000 people were killed and nearly a million injured as a result of accidents, collisions, and other difficulties on the highways.

It is said that at least 10,000,000 people every year have had accidents sufficiently severe to take them temporarily from their work. The loss financially may be estimated in billions.

The total working time lost on account of accidents in industry has been estimated at approximately 250,000,000 working days.

These are some of the simple figures which indicate the importance of the safety program. They indicate more-over, the need for an organization like the National Safety Council, which is holding in Chicago a vast congress dealing with the necessity for prevention of accidents and for the kind of education of the public that will lower the costs of carelessness.

Safety is a habit, as carelessness is a habit. Safety means the avoidance of unnecessary carelessness or foolish risks.

Our world was once much safer than it is now. Before the coming of machinery, no one was disturbed about automobile accidents. In a previous generation people did not die in their homes from electrical shocks or from the use of vibrators, electrical stoves, electric sewing machines, or even electric lamps. Workers did not suffer from contact with high speed machines in industry.

The four types of accidents that cause most deaths are those from automobiles, drowning, falls and burns. Most of the accidents associated with automobiles, drowning, falls and burns are preventable accidents—preventable by a little carelessness and proper instruction.

In a recent study of accident rates in the state of Kansas, it was discovered that accidents are fifth in the causes of death, preceded only by heart disease, cancer, brain hemorrhage, and chronic inflammation of the kidneys.

We have given careful concern to these leading causes of death. There are societies and organizations devoted to encouraging public action against every one of them.

The National Safety Council concerned with the fifth of the leading causes of death, deserves the support that all of us must give if its work is to be successful.

Parents Must Teach Children of the Many Dangers Lurking in Innocent-Looking Things

It seems timely just now, since children are more or less indoors, to talk about safety in the house.

Part of such protection is up to parents, but a great deal of it is the children's own responsibility. So I think it best to discuss both sides of the subject.

It is one thing to warn them and tell them of dangers, another to impress them sufficiently to put them on their guard. Naturally experience is a fine teacher, and hurts are the most impressive lessons of all. But this fine theory cannot be carried out to realistically. The burned baby may be burned too badly.

This fall a new book has come out that must surely be a boon to parents of little children. It is Munro Leaf's "Safety Can Be Fun." The NIT WIT is always in hot water, figuratively and literally.

I think the little stories and pictures will be regular sermons to any child under eight.

Tiny children know instinctively the fine things that can happen with heat, cold, or anything that hurts. What they don't know are the things they have never tried out. They don't know, for instance, that a lollipop can kill if it sticks in a throat. They don't realize that a ball left on stairs can be as dangerous as a gun. Or that pak-

A King Spent Half His Life in Jail

A long, gaudy and colorful historical-costume novel with all the trimmings is Evan John's "Crippled Splendor" (Dutton: $2.50). It tells the story of James I. of Scotland, the man who put the Stuart dynasty on its feet and so became, ultimately, the ancestor of England's kings—and who incidentally paid with his life for his achievements. James had a tragic life, from start to finish. Although England and

"Whew! That Was a Close Call!"

Scotland were technically at peace, the British kidnapped him when he was eight years old and held him a prisoner for upwards of 20 years, while Scotland was governed—or misgoverned, rather—in his absence by a regent who had no slightest desire to pay the ransom that would get him back.

So James was getting on into middle age when he finally returned to take the throne of Scotland. It was an uncertain sort of throne. The lawless clan chieftains of the land did not care to see a strong central authority over them. James's efforts to restore order and abuses, and give the common folk a halfway decent sort of government, made powerful enemies for him. In the end he was murdered. But he planted his dynasty firmly, and his descendants sat on the throne of England.

Mr. John tells this story well, if at great length. His picture of the cruel, dirty-at-the-edges, half-barbaric age is excellent; he tells James's story with sympathetic understanding, and he provides a fine portrait of England's bluff King Hal. All in all, "Crippled Splendor" is a fine book in its field.

CHAPTER VI

"Oh, Myrna!"
Anne stumbled forward in the darkness and clutched the frightened girl who stood back against the wall.

"Anne! . . . Myrna's voice choked. Then: 'I might know you'd try to find me—and after I got here, I wanted you so!'"

"How about some light?" Tait asked, trying to make his voice sound jovial.

Myrna did not answer at once. Then she demanded in a queer, tight voice, "Who is that, Anne?"

"Robert Tait. He was—at our table."

In the silence Tait's eyes grew accustomed to the dark room. He saw Myrna move across it. A match struck, and her hands lighting a kerosene lamp at the table. In the uncertain yellow glare she looked very little like the smart, happy girl he had met only a few hours before at the Pacific Plaza.

"You'd better sit down," he said gently. "Cigarette?"

She took one gratefully, accepted his light with fingers trembling. "Thanks . . . so much. I—I suppose I'm a coward to act like this. But I wanted to run. Just keep on running. And somehow the only place I could think of was here."

Tait nodded. "Fortunately Anne knew you well enough to figure just that. And we don't think you're a coward. I believe I'd want to scam myself. But it won't do you much good, Myrna. You've got to face the music."

He could have slit his own tongue as he mentioned "music" for Myrna cringed at the word.

"You'll be all right," Anne said. "They'll want to ask you a few questions. It can't be worse than that."

"They?"

"The police," said Tait gently.

Myrna's head raised in bewilderment. "Then—then they don't know who killed him?"

"Not yet, Myrna."

THE girl was silent a moment, staring into space. Then she straightened in her chair, her fists clenching. The cigarette dropped to the floor. "It was one of those women who did it," she cried. "They were all in love with him. They couldn't bear to see one woman have him. So you see—I'm really to blame. If he hadn't married—"

Tait took her by the shoulders. "That's enough of that kind of talk, Myrna. You've got to get hold of yourself." He held her gaze sharply. "Who was with you here tonight, Myrna?"

"With me?"

Anne Lester's voice cut in gently. "Listen, Myrna, when you tell the truth it's good enough for me. Didn't you know there was someone else around here tonight?"

"No. You—you must be mistaken."

Tait shot a significant glance toward Anne. "Perhaps we were. We thought we heard someone in the brush." He took up the lamp. "We can negotiate that path bet- with this, I think. Let's get back to town."

Without protest, Myrna allowed Anne to take her arm and guide her from the shack. Tait went ahead, holding the lamp aloft. When they reached the car, he blew against the wick. Then, after holding the lamp to cool a moment, he tossed it into the tall weeds by the side of the road.

THEY put Myrna between them in the little coupe, and started down the narrow road. For the first time, Tait noticed Myrna's shoes. They were the evening slippers she had worn to her wedding. And they were streaked and torn. The hem of her long dress was in shreds!

"Myrna, how did you get here?"

"I hired a taxi to the fork in the road," she said dully.

"And tramped here the rest of the way?"

"Yes. I didn't want the driver to know where I was going. I—I—" told him I lived in a farm house down the other road and didn't want my father to hear the car so late. The fare was more than I could pay, and I—"

her voice broke. "I had to give him Ladd's ring."

"Do you know the company that ran the cab?"

"It was a green and red one."

"Good. The outfit's all right. I'll straighten up the fare, and we'll get back the ring."

WEARILY Myrna dropped her head on Anne Lester's shoulder. Soon she was asleep, oblivious to the noise of the car's engine. After a moment, Anne said softly, "What's the program when we get back to town?"

"I think you gals had better sleep in my apartment. Mike Dunphy and Dannie Feeley may be camping around yours. We'll let her sleep until noon, at least. Then we'll have some lunch and rehearse a little talk Myrna will have to give down at headquarters."

Anne's eyes were filled with grateful admiration. "I don't imagine they make a man any better than you, Bob Tait."

"There've been plenty of complaints," grunted Tait. "Another thing—you and Myrna can't go out in daylight in the clothes you're wearing. Tomorrow when the stores open you'd better do some shopping. I can furnish the price of a couple of modest outfits."

"Oh, no. My credit's good at Bilger's. I'll go there."

fully, "I'll admit I'm glad to hear that. I don't know how long it will be to my next job. Looks like I'm going to be too busy to take any pictures for a while."

"But why? As soon as Myrna puts in an appearance—"

"She's going to be in hot water. And the police are likely to want to keep her there as long as they're up a tree. This is going to be a tough one to crack, even for a smart fellow like Dannie Feeley. And Ladd Dombey was so well known that the public won't let it slide."

He looked apprehensively at the sleeping girl. "The fact is, I don't think this is going to get out of this mess until the murder of Dombey is unmistakably fastened on somebody else."

Anne was silent a moment. "And you mean—you'll keep on helping until it is?"

"God and Dannie Feeley willing, yes," he grinned. "I'm a Boy Scout at heart."

"I hired a taxi to the fork in the road," she said dully.

"And tramped here the rest of the way?"

"Yes. I didn't want the driver to know where I was going. I—I—"

Denmark Marks 150 Years of Farm Relief

THE farmers of tiny Denmark had their Lexington and Concord exactly 150 years ago, and when the smoke had cleared they found a new liberation that completely reformed the life of the country.

Up to the latter part of the 18th century, the peasants of Denmark were nearly all "leasehold" tenants. But leasehold then implied that the peasants not only paid rent to the landlord but were obliged to work for him as much and as often as demanded. The peasant was virtually a serf.

Moreover, the government in 1733 had enacted a law forbidding all men of the peasant class to leave the estate to which they belonged, thus stopping emigration. But the very severity of the system was to bring reforms. A vast movement got under way to abolish these conditions, and in 1788, finally, an edict was issued by the government ending villenage.

Landlords and peasants alike profited by the reform. A historian wrote: "Before the reform in farming, landlords, as well as peasants, were living in poverty, but now riches sprang from the soil." It was a reform, therefore, that was to begin an era of unsurpassed agricultural progress for Denmark. The country marks this 150 years of progress with a special commemorative stamp.

It illustrates a memorial column erected at Copenhagen to recall the farmers' "emancipation."

Well, Leo Saw Dis Joolry Place, See? So He Wuz Late, See?

HOLLYWOOD—All over the lot: Leo Gorcey, eldest of the "Dead End" kids, is explaining to the director why he is late for a call for "They Made Me a Criminal."

"I was driving up the boulevard—see!—and passes a jewelry store and thinks, 'Well, it might as well be now as ever.' So I parks the jalopy and goes into the point and says 'Gimme a ring.' The guy says, 'What kind of a ring,' and I say 'A ring for a guy that's gonna get married, or anyway engaged.' He shoves out some and I say 'Gimme that,' and he says 'That'll be a hummer at fifty bucks,' and I say 'Okay.'"

Young Mr. Grocery fishes a little suede-covered box from a pocket and displays a ring set with a small stone. "That ain't a chip off a milk bottle!" he declares. "The dame gets it tonight, and I hope she likes it."

He's Snaking His Way into a Good Part

A few weeks ago Sid Davis was working as a mail boy at RKO. Today, on the same lot, he is an actor and snake-handler. Not much of an actor yet, but the snakes are paying for dramatic and diction lessons, so he has hopes.

Nobody guessed that Davis' hobby was snakes until he learned that the studio was going to rent some for "Ghanga Din." Then he admitted that he had a collection of nearly 500 dead ones, stuffed and pickled and 100 live ones. Many of the latter are rattlers, with poison sacs intact, but he had plenty of large, harmless king and gopher snakes, so he and his reptiles were hired.

Of course they needed some hooded cobras for the picture, so Davis resorted to a favorite Hollywood trick of snake make-up—made some little rubber hoods to be fitted to the gopher snakes. They appear very realistic, except that they don't seem to have a cobra's appreciation of flute music.

Anyway, Davis will receive about $500 for the engagement, and he'll spend it all on learning to be a real actor. He wants to play sinister heavies.

Little Boy Grew . . . But Just Sideways

Among the youngsters working in "Peck's Bad Boy" is Spanky McFarland. Spanky will be 10 years old Oct. 2, but visitors to the set still recognize him immediately.

He's still very small, virtually, but has an imposing circumference. His mother says she doesn't worry much about his diet. As long as he can be healthy he may as well be fat, and therefore a good type for a juvenile comic.

"Spanky had 96 cents worth of lunch," she says, "and he's already hungry again."

Spanky has outlasted many an adult star, for he has been a featured member of Our Gang Comedies for seven years. Here after the Gang pictures will be produced by Metro, which took over the series from Hal Roach. And Spanky has contracted for 12 of those films.

He Was a Fright to Horace Heidt

Spanky recently returned from a tour, which went off a good deal better than the youngster's first experience in a theater.

That was in San Francisco, Mrs. McFarland recalls. "Horace Heidt was the master-of-ceremonies," she related, "and he was supposed to introduce Spanky and talk to him a little while, and then let him sing a song."

"Mr. Heidt suggested that the whole thing be ad libbed, and I thought that would be all right. The first show was all right, too. He asked Spanky how old he was, and how he liked movies, and a lot of simple questions like that."

"But when the second show began Spanky didn't realize that it was a different audience. Mr. Heidt began asking the same questions and Spanky got mad. He'd say, 'I already told you I was 4,' and 'I explained all about how I like the movies,' and so on. Mr. Heidt was furious. He couldn't do a thing with Spanky, and the audience was in stitches."

The Vagabond Song
There is something in the autumn
That is native to my blood—
Touch of manner, hint of mood;
And my heart is like a rhyme,
With the yellow and the purple
And the crimson keeping time.

Te scurlet on the maples can shake
Me like a cry
Of bugles going by;
And my lonely spirit thrills
To see the frothy asters like a smoke
Upon the hills.

There is something in October sets the gypsy blood astir;
We must rise and follow her,
When from every hill of flame
She calls and calls the vagabond by

across for first down. The line repulsed the attempt and Hope took possession about midfield. On the first play Coleman went around end for 12 yards. Two plays later Eason passed to Fulkerson for 11. Parsons and Baker picked up five and then Parsons shot a pass to Coleman who gathered it in and ran 25 yards to cross the goal line that gave the Bobcats its first score of the game. Jimmy Taylor kicked extra point. Captain Parsons was hurt on the play and removed. He was given a big hand as he left the field.

DeQueen took the kickoff, returned to the 27 where Fenton was forced to punt. Eason being brought down in midfield. Three plays failed and Eason punted. The hard-charging Bobcat line stopped the Leopards at the line of scrimmage on three tries and then Fenton punted to Joe Eason who took the catch on his 40-yard line and galloped to glory.

It was a 60-yard sprint, starting straight down the field and then to the left side line. Jimmy Taylor added the extra point from placement. Williams of DeQueen took the next kickoff and was brought down by Major Simpson on the 32. Buorne passed to Fenton for 7 yards and then a 15-yard penalty on Hope gave the Leopards their first down of the ball game. The Bobcats, plenty mad, were roughing it a bit.

Fenton passed to Grady, an end, for another first down. A line play followed that placed the ball on Hope's 25 as the half ended.

The Hope and DeQueen hands put on a fine exhibition during the rest period, the Hope band featuring Joy Ramsey in several acrobatic acts.

The Third Quarter

Dillahunty, Leopard back, took the kickoff and was brought down on his 32. Ellen intercepted a pass on the DeQueen 40. Baker went around end for nine. Eason failed to find a receiver and was downed for an eight-yard loss. Eason then placed a punt on the Leopard 10. The Leopards passed for 10. Williams bounced hard on the next play and dropped the ball. Ellen recovering for Hope, Coleman was rushed on an end play and lost five. A pass to Fulkerson failed. Eason lost 10 in failing to find a receiver. Eason punted to the right corner of the field, the ball being grounded four yards from the goal line.

Fenton made four on a line play. And then dropped back to punt. Three Bobcats rushed him and blocked the punt, Tommy Turner recovering on the five-yard line. Baker slit the line and went across standing up.

Only one outstanding play was made the remainder of the third quarter. It was when Coleman intercepted a pass, ran 35 to the 10, only to have the ball brought back and Hope penalized 15. The boys again were roughing it. Eason punted to the DeQueen 35 as the quarter ended.

Retiring General Not So Retiring

Retiring from command of the Fourth Army Corps area after 43 years service, Maj.-Gen. George Van Horn Moseley, above, deplored "visionary experiments doomed to failure" of the treaty and "war guilt" humiliation of the German people. And today he alone may decide whether the world shall fight again. Der Fuehrer is shown here on a current German stamp which marks this 49th birthday.

At 13—Deanna Grows Up—At 15

At the beginning of the last period Buttrick, quarter, passed to Fenton who ran 40 yards. He was tackled by Murphy 10 yards from the goal line. Hope batted down four passes and took the ball. Eason punted out of danger. Neither team seriously threatened the remainder of the game, the Bobcats' chances being hurt by a series of 15-yard penalties for clipping and roughing.

The victory was especially cherished by the Bobcats who were forced to play with a last-minute change in three positions of the lineup.

Hope will play Jonesboro, a conference foe, here next Friday.

his first attempt and Laffitte brought in the first down on the second attempt. Langston took the ball on the Zebra 30 and with a spinner picked up seven yards. Langston again took the ball and with a spectacular line plunge broke through for a 49-yard run down the field to place the ball on the Fordyce 14 as the quarter ended.

In the second quarter, Raymond Hulse went around end for the first touchdown. Try for point was good. Langston also turned in another four-star performance as he brought in the second touchdown after a 38-yard run through the broken Fordyce defense line. Kick for extra point failed. Was ruled no good.

After the kickoff from the second Zebra touchdown, Fordyce took to the air. Langston intercepted a pass on his 42 returning to the Fordyce 39. The Zebra's came through with a 32-yard pass. Stallworth to Payne and another touchdown. Try for point failed.

Camden Wins First Game
CAMDEN.—Camden High School showed its best offensive of the year and defeated the Texarkana (Ark.) Razorbacks, 25 to 7, before 2,000 fans here Friday night. Camden scored in the opening period and Texarkana tied it with a 55-yard run by Raggio.

In the last period Camden made three touchdowns to eclipse their season's total of 12 points in three previous games. Highlights was Langley's 70-yard sprint with an intercepted pass in the final quarter to give Camden its final touchdown. Langley made three touchdowns. Captain Taylor made the other counter.

In the first period Langley dove over from the three-yard line after Taylor had intercepted a pass on the 32-yard line. Brown caught a pass on the 15-yard line and Langley and Taylor took it to the six. Langley plunged over and kicked goal.

Texarkana took the next kickoff and on the second play Raggio broke through tackle and raced 55 yards to score. Haynes kicked the goal.

In the third Camden recovered a fumble on the 45 and marched down the field to score with Taylor making the marker.

In the fourth Langley took a pass from White for the third marker and a short time later raced 70 yards for the final counter. All his placement attempts were failures.

Nashville Passes to Win
NASHVILLE, Ark.—Nashville High School Scrappers scored twice in the first half and then coasted to a 13-to-0 victory over the Gurdon Go Devils here Friday night. The Scrappers climaxed an 80-yard touchdown drive with a Gosnell to Jennings touchdown pass, and Rossman passed to Jennings for the point. Jennings went over for another touchdown in the second quarter after taking a 32-yard pass from

Not 50, Adolf Hitler Shakes the World

FAR removed from a pale-faced, spindly-legged youth of Austria is today's Adolf Hitler, who, not yet 50, has power to shake the world. In the place of courts and covenants he stands as the individual on whom depends very largely the decision whether Europe will again march to war, inevitably dragging the rest of the world into the fire with it.

But as a child this same Hitler was a weakling. He was scrawny-complexioned, underweight, as a boy playing about the streets of his native Braunau, Austria. He did not lack, however, in personal magnetism, was invariably the leader of his group in games, resented that anyone should question his captaincy.

At an early age he showed his first contempt for the Austrian state, rebelled against his parents' desire that he become an official as was his father. Later he wrote: "From my earliest youth I was convinced that the destruction of the Austrian empire was a necessary condition to the survival of the German race." And apparently at the same time he conceived his rabid anti-semitism. He distrusted his Jewish school-boy companions, learned to spurn all Jews a few years later in Vienna.

Then the World War broke, crystallizing Hitler's political and social viewpoints. His rise after Versailles was almost inevitable, grounded on the "inequalities" of the treaty and "war guilt" humiliation of the German people. And today he alone may decide whether the world shall fight again.

Retiring from command of the Fourth Army Corps area after 43 years service, Maj.-Gen. George Van Horn Moseley, above, deplored "visionary experiments doomed to failure" of the treaty and "war guilt" humiliation of the German people. And today he alone may decide whether the world shall fight again. Der Fuehrer is shown here on a current German stamp which marks this 49th birthday.

At 13—Deanna Grows Up—At 15

Sweet-voiced Deanna Durbin of the movies was just 13 when the picture at left above was taken as she started on the road to stardom. She has come far and fast in the two years since. And she has "grown up" too—witness the new picture at right of a mature young lady dressed in the height of fashion.

ing swiftness.

At the close of the first quarter, Little Rock led, 6 to 6. Early in the second quarter, the Chicks held a 7-to-6 advantage. Midway of the second period, the Tigers were ahead, 13 to 7. At the half, Blytheville paced, 14 to 13. Oscillation continued in the third period. Early in the third quarter, Little Rock led, 19 to 14, and the end of it, Blytheville was ahead, 21 to 13. However, the difference was that the Tigers resumed their rampage with another pair of touchdowns in the fourth period while the Chicks were done but always dangerous.

He Grows Twenty-One Pumpkins on One Vine
BIG SANDY, Tenn.—(AP)—C.D. Pierce claims a record yield from one pumpkin vine.

Pierce said he had a vine in his garden, covering a 35 by 40-foot area, on which there were 21 mature pumpkins and several green ones. The two largest weighed 69 and 52 pounds.

Today's Fashion Hint

Lines of This Frock Give Impression of Tiny Waist

By CAROL DAY
It's smart to have a full-busted, tiny-waisted, utterly feminine silhouette this fall, and here's a charming design that helps you get that way.

Shirring on the shoulders is not only pretty in itself, but creates soft fullness over the bosom. The skirt is straight and fitted, with a lifted waistline that makes you look slim. Victorian sleeves, peaked up at the shoulder, accentuate the effect. That front panel, too, gives a nice flat diaphragm. (Be sure your corset is just right before you have your new frocks fitted.)

Buy a soft fabric for this—silk crepe, thin wool, crepe satin or velvet. You'll probably use the design more than once, because the style is so attractive. Pattern 8320 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. With long sleeves, size 36 requires 5 1/2 yards of 39 inch material; with short, 4 1/2 yards.

The new Fall and Winter Pattern Book, 32 pages of attractive designs for every size and every occasion, is now ready. Photographs show dresses made from these patterns being worn; a feature you will enjoy. Let the charming designs in this new book help you in your sewing. One pattern and the new Fall and Winter Pattern Book—25 cents. Pattern or book alone—15 cents.

For a Pattern of this attractive model send 15c in coin, your name, address, style number and size to Hope Star Today's Pattern Bureau, 211 W. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill.

It's Now Official—He's Mahatma Gandhi.

"This is a wonderful suit of clothes I'm wearing."
"It looks like an ordinary piece of goods to me."
"What I mean is, the wool was grown in Australia, the cloth woven in New England, the thread was made in Britain, the suit was made in New York, and the merchant I purchased it from has his store in Peoria, Ill."
"What's strange about that?"
"Why, isn't it remarkable that so many people can make a living out of something that I've never paid for?"

Where Poles Get Slice of Czechia

The Poles have passed the platter and the Czechs have sliced away another part of their fast-diminishing little land, agreeing to withdraw troops from the areas shaded in the map above. An international commission will draw up a new frontier, probably giving to Poland the areas 50 to 70 per cent Polish and leaving Czechoslovakia the region where Poles are 10 to 50 per cent of the population. Smaller map locates the disputed area.
